SPORTING NEWS AND COMMENT

EDITED BY ROBERT EDGREN.

A BUNCH OF BRIGHTON HUNCHES THAT WERE FOLLOWED TO-DAY.

FISTCUFFS will revive Monday night when Philadelphia Jack O'Brien and Sam Berger, of California, met in Philadelphia for a six-round go. This should turn out a good scrap. O'Brien claims to be the world's premier heavy-weight. Sam Berger wants to be.

On form there should be nothing to the scrap, but O'Brien, and unless the chivalry from the Pacific Slope shows a lot of swiftness and ring "savvy" it is likely to go hard with him. Still, the new men always have their inning sooner or later. This may be Jack O'Brien's night to get the hook.

Sam's backers seem to have confidence. Here is a note from Jack Gleeson, a very well-known Franco sporting man, who has come East to see Berger person:

R. EDGREN, Esq., Evening World: My Dear Edgren.

I am not going to venture an opinion of the outcome of this Berger-O'Brien contest, but I am positive Berger will be a surprise. You will recall your visits to Jim Corbett's racing quarters at Alameda, when he was racing for Jeffries, and you will probably remember how well he boxed with Jim. Since that time he has grown bigger and stronger, has acquired a knowledge of how to hit and I think, has all the earmarks of a champion.

He has been in active training for the past three weeks at a place called Cosmic, N. J., and will be in splendid condition by the 16th. He weighs 200 in condition, and is 6 feet 2 inches high and only twenty-two years of age.

There is, of course, no doubting O'Brien's speed and knowledge of the game. But here is a younger man, with height weight and reach over him, who is also quite fast for a big fellow. I am sure you cannot make any mistake in giving this young fellow a boost.

A CORRESPONDENT wants to know the weight of Martin Sheridan's discus, and of what material it is made.

Sheridan uses the standard discus adopted by the A. A. U. It weighs four and a half pounds. It is shaped like two plates placed together edge to
